TRAIL of Johnson County published its first Senior Housing Guide in the fall of 2020. Despite a brief pause during COVID, construction of senior housing facilities in Iowa City, Coralville, and North Liberty continues at a steady pace. There is a great deal of variety in these 55+ facilities, and older adults and their families seek guidance in choosing among the amenities, services, costs, and other features that will best meet their needs.

At the same time, TRAIL has seen an increase in older adults needing not just safe, comfortable, and affordable housing, but also access to other types of services that enable more successful aging in place and late-life care. These services can range from at-home medical care to temporary, in-patient rehabilitation facilities for recovery after a fall or other medical issue.

With the support of the TRAIL Board of Directors and generous donors, our 2023 Johnson County Senior Housing and Services Guide is designed to address these needs in a comprehensive, easy-to-use way. Intended as a community resource, this publication helps fulfill TRAIL's mission of helping older adults throughout Johnson County live and thrive in the places they call home.

In preparing this guide, TRAIL invited local senior-living facilities, skilled nursing facilities, at-home medical and non-medical care services, rehabilitation hospitals, and hospice providers in Johnson County to submit content, at no charge, about their primary features, amenities, costs, and other factors.

NOTE: This Guide is presented as a public service to older adults and their families. Descriptions of services and amenities were supplied by the facilities or obtained from their websites. Prices are included only for those facilities that responded to our requests for information. Unless otherwise noted, costs are current as of March 2023 and are subject to change.

Interested persons should contact each facility or service directly to obtain the latest and most accurate information. This guide is not an endorsement nor is it meant to rate, rank, or recommend any of the facilities and services included herein.

THANK YOU TO OUR SPONSORS

TRAIL's 2023 Johnson County Senior Housing and Services Guide would not have been possible without the generous support of individual and organizational contributors. The TRAIL Board of Directors and staff wish to express our deepest gratitude to these thoughtful donors for their support of TRAIL and its mission.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Not sure what type of senior living situation you're looking for? These definitions, provided by AARP, will help you navigate this guide:

INDEPENDENT LIVING

Sometimes referred to as retirement communities, independent living communities offer older adults with limited care needs a simplified lifestyle. These facilities often take the form of apartment or condominium complexes with amenities like fitness programs, housekeeping, communal meals, and other services to enrich and simplify life for older adults looking to downsize. Cooperative housing units also fall into the independent living category. In these facilities, residents purchase shares or a membership in a cooperative housing corporation, which owns or leases all real estate. Residents pay a monthly fee to cover their share of the operating expenses.

ASSISTED LIVING

Assisted living communities specialize in providing care and supervision. They frequently offer services like planned activities, housekeeping and laundry, transportation, meals, plus exercise and wellness programs. Assisted living communities sometimes offer limited medical assistance but not skilled nursing.

MEMORY CARE COMMUNITIES

Memory care communities specialize in providing care to aging adults with Alzheimer's, dementia, and other cognitive issues. Staff members are trained to help with communication and to help residents manage dementia symptoms like sundown syndrome, wandering, or combativeness.

CONTINUING CARE COMMUNITIES

Continuing care communities usually consist of a campus-like setting offering a variety of housing options that support various stages of life. Spanning independent living, assisted living, and/or skilled nursing care, they enable residents to age in a single community without having to relocate as their needs evolve.

SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES

These facilities serve people with disabilities, illnesses, or mental conditions that require 24-hour medical care and monitoring, whether for a short time (e.g., injury recovery) or on a more permanent basis. Skilled nursing care includes help with all meals, daily living activities such as bathing and dressing, round-the-clock supervision, and a greater degree of medical attention than in assisted living.

REHABILITATION HOSPITALS

These are specialty in-patient facilities that treat people recovering from serious injuries, illnesses, surgeries, and chronic medical conditions. Patients at rehabilitation hospitals require hospital-level medical services such as 24-hour nursing care. Compared to skilled nursing facilities, rehabilitation hospitals typically provide more intensive therapy services over a specified period of time, with the goal of returning the patient to their prior level of independence.

supervision and administration; social services; daily programming and activities (social, religious, educational, and exercise).

Health Center Services: Oaknoll offers a 58-bed Health Center with 52 private rooms and three double rooms (reserved for couples, partners, siblings, etc., that want to continue living together). Thirty-two beds are licensed for Skilled Nursing Care—the highest level of nursing outside a hospital setting. Ten of the private rooms are in The Loft, a self-contained memory care unit with a neighborhood feel serving primarily residents living with Alzheimer’s disease or other types of dementia. Residents in the Health Center pay the same rate as they did for their independent living apartment, plus additional meals. The services of the resident’s personal physician, other specialists, and the cost of prescriptions are paid by the resident, just like they would be if they were in their own apartment.

Short Stay Services: Oaknoll also offers a Short Stay Unit (SSU) for those 62 and older. It is an extension of the licensed Health Center with nursing staff trained to provide skilled nursing care. It is designed for short-term rehabilitative stay after a scheduled surgery or an unexpected health condition (priority based on room availability is given to Oaknoll residents and Preferred Access List members). The Short Stay Unit is self-contained, and includes 10 private rooms, each with large bathrooms and walk-in showers. Within the unit is a Therapy Suite that provides physical, occupational, and speech therapy. Consultation staff is also available (dietician, dental, and podiatry) as well as housekeeping services, whirlpool spa, Wi-Fi/internet access, cable TV, private phone, activities, and programs. Salon services are available (haircut, manicure, pedicure, or therapeutic massage), and clothing/laundry services and emergency transportation can also be arranged. Meals are available from all three Oaknoll dining venues.

Oaknoll East: Oaknoll East is an independent living campus located on a secluded wooded lot on the northeast side of Iowa City off Scott Boulevard, near Hickory Hill Park and walking trails. Apartment sizes range from 777 SF to 1,673 SF. Unique amenities of the Oaknoll East campus include Scotty’s Pub & Grill, wellness center, community room, lounge with a full residential kitchen for entertaining and meetings, library, heated underground parking with car wash and dog wash, pet-friendly buildings, dog park, and outdoor areas for entertaining and cookouts. The same services provided to independent living residents on the main campus are provided at Oaknoll East. Assisted Living and Health Center services are available to all residents on the main campus location (1 Oaknoll Court, Iowa City).

ELIGIBILITY:

Oaknoll serves residents who are 62 and older. To qualify for LifeCare, each individual must be able to live independently. Then, as health needs change, Oaknoll residents are guaranteed care in Assisted Living or the Health Center.

COST:

Costs vary significantly depending on the size and location of the apartment. One-person entrance fees can range from approximately $103,000 to $585,000; one-person monthly fees can range from approximately $2,500 to $3,500. When additional health services are needed by the resident, the monthly cost does not increase. The two-person entrance fees can range from $133,000 to $850,000; two-person monthly fees can range from $4,300 to $5,500. The value of LifeCare for a two-person household is especially significant. If one member needs additional health services, the cost for the couple does not increase even though two different spaces are being occupied (i.e., the Independent Living apartment and a nursing bed in the Health Center).

Prospective residents should call Steve Roe, Executive Director, at (319) 351-1720 to schedule an appointment and tour. Application materials include a medical screening (completed by the prospective resident's physician) and a financial disclosure.

The criteria for coming to the Bird House are:

- Life expectancy of six months or less
- Guest already enrolled with a hospice agency
- COVID negative at time of admission
- Weight of less than 300 pounds
- Guest has a “do not resuscitate” status and a durable power of attorney for health care decision making

When a Bird House referral is received, staff gather as much information as possible about the guest. If all the rooms in the house are full, the guest is placed on a waiting list. As soon as a room becomes available, the family is contacted.

Iowa City Hospice is a community-based, not-for-profit hospice organization that provides care to individuals within a seven-county service area: Johnson, Iowa, Linn, Cedar, Muscatine, Louisa, and Washington counties. Care is provided wherever the patient is — a house, a nursing home, an assisted living facility, a hospital, or even a hotel or shelter.

Hospice care is appropriate for an individual who is terminally ill and not likely to recover; support is provided to the patient and their family when curative treatment is no longer a chosen option, and the life prognosis is six months or less.

Hospice services can include:

- Help with bathing and personal care
- Home visits several times a week
- Management of pain and other difficult symptoms
- Emotional and spiritual support
- 24-hour assistance and advice
- Patient and family caregiver education
- Coordination of multiple services
- Help for family caregivers
- Bereavement support and counseling

Payment for hospice services is covered 100% by Medicare for eligible Medicare beneficiaries. Patients who have Medicaid insurance are also covered by a hospice benefit. Many private insurance policies also provide hospice benefit coverage. With generous donations from the community, Iowa City Hospice also is able to provide services to those who do not have any insurance coverage. No one will be denied care because of an inability to pay.

GETTING STARTED

Advice for Your Senior Housing Search

The nonprofit Where You Live Matters offers these top 12 tips to consider as you weigh the various senior housing options, whether here in Johnson County or elsewhere in the country.

1. Know what you need.

Make an objective list of services and supports needed — both current and anticipated. Maintaining independence, getting help with bathing and dressing, managing medication, maximizing safety — knowing upfront what’s needed can help define budget and choice.

2. Establish a budget.

How much can be spent on senior living each month? Many of your current homeowner expenses will be included in monthly fees — meals, utilities and taxes, for example. And as you’re planning, be mindful of other financial resources that can help, such as long-term care insurance, or the Aid & Attendance benefit for veterans and their surviving spouses. Don’t overlook any resources that can help you and your family.

3. Determine a location.

The real estate mantra — location, location, location — applies. Is it meaningful to stay close to your current neighborhood? Is being close to a major medical center important? Or is a move in order to reposition seniors for the sake of adult children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren? Which location is “it”?

4. List desires.

What are the “must-have” services and amenities? Your list should include whatever is non-negotiable in making this move — a community that accepts pets or offers a comprehensive wellness program, for example. You should also create a “wish list” of everything hoped for, such as an on-site guest suite for visiting family members, a fitness center with pool, or an in-house branch of a favorite bank.

5. Visit websites.

Search online for senior living communities in the desired location. The facility’s website should describe services and amenities, the continuum of care available, and life enrichment programs. Some communities also provide general information about successful aging, caregiver support, and senior living. Make a list of the communities you’d like to know more about or want to visit.

6. Read online reviews.

Find a community you’d like to know more about. Check Caring.com, SeniorAdvisor.com and other online rating services for reviews that can tell you what current and previous residents and families have to say about the community you’re interested in.

7. Don't forget about Facebook.

Look up the Facebook page for each community that interests you. Read the comments. Look at the photos. See what you can learn about lifestyle, residents, activities, programs — even the quality of dining.

8. Ask around.

Anyone who's been through the process — whether it was for themselves or on behalf of a loved one — can usually offer helpful insights. Similarly, you can often find good information and advice from a trusted family physician or clergy member. Ask friends, family, colleagues — you may discover ideas you haven't thought about or and information you need to know.

9. Make preliminary contact.

Shorten a long list of potential communities by phoning or emailing. Prepare a list of questions based on the identified needs, desires, and budget. Preliminary contact can trim your list, while also making it clear which communities will be important to visit in person.

10. Go visit.

An in-person visit pays huge dividends when it comes to making an informed decision. Here's what to watch for: How do residents and staff interact? What's the mood of the community? Are residents actively engaged, sitting quietly, or out of sight? Do you see safety features such as handrails, grab bars, and emergency call systems? Is it clean?

Is the decorating up to date? Does it feel like a place you could call home? Are you greeted promptly and with friendliness? Ask questions and take notes — and consider bringing along a friend or relative so you can join forces to observe everything.

11. Review and revisit.

After completing the initial round of community visits, review your notes and observations. Narrow your list a little more by identifying which communities are good options and which you'd like to eliminate. Schedule a new round of visits to your shortened list of communities, making sure you return to each community at a different time than your last visit — even consider visiting evenings and weekends. It's helpful to see the community during the times when senior management isn't on site.

12. Consult an attorney.

Seek professional advice. Don't go it alone; mistakes here can be very expensive, both financially and emotionally. Retirement community contracts can be long and complicated. Make sure you understand the ins and outs of everything before you sign anything.

About TRAIL of Johnson County

A membership-based nonprofit, TRAIL — which stands for Tools and Resources for Active Independent Living — helps older adults in Johnson County live more fully, safely, and comfortably in the places they call home. We are Iowa’s first aging-in-place organization and are affiliated with the national Village to Village Network.

For a yearly fee, TRAIL provides members with volunteer help for rides to medical appointments, small chores and repairs around the house, tech support, and other tasks; a full calendar of social and educational events (most of which have moved online during COVID-19); and for Full members, a new Life Transitions Service that offers expert guidance in cases of sudden illness or disability, the need to move or downsize, etc. TRAIL also connects with members through our monthly TRAIL Guide newsletter and other communications that keep our members informed and engaged.

TRAIL is committed to diversity and inclusion, and to serving older adults throughout Johnson County, regardless of their ability to pay. Our Supported Membership Program provides no-cost memberships to individuals and households that meet low-income requirements.

In these and other ways, TRAIL has built an active and caring community. We invite you to join us as a member, volunteer, donor, or trusted service provider. Learn more at www.trailofjohnsoncounty.org, visit us on Facebook, or call our office at (319) 800-9003. We’re here to help.
